The Grapevine Workshop Experience

The workshop for me was eye opening. It was in a different setting with some new faces outside of my home group. The facilitators were there to guide and teach, I was expected to do the thinking and writing. This was something new in my early months of sobriety. One reason I bring this up from time to time in meetings is because of the service and commitment that it takes to put on a workshop, I am very appreciative of what it did for me. Secondly, I now have a story I have written, a thirty-thousand-foot view of my life in recovery. It has become a valuable tool, which I have used in different areas of my life and in different fellowships. It has turned into my testimony, it is "MY" story, and it is also a way to help anyone not just my fellow alcoholics. It is something that I recommend to anyone in AA, write your story, and you will be surprised how this can open channels to share experience, strength, and hope. I have shared this with people suffering with Depression, and PTSD. I have had a family member call me after reading it and tell me they had no idea what dealing with alcohol was like for me and they can see why sobriety is so important to me. It is quite a blessing, and it all started with attending a Grapevine Workshop.

Thanks for letting me share.
