Letter from Our Delegate

Happy Gratitude Month to All!

It's hard to believe that the month of November is already here. It seems impossible that we are this close to the end of the year.

I received my November issue of Grapevine a few days ago as of this writing and this month's Special Section is on gratitude. But what really caught my eye on the cover is the title of a featured Article: "My First Sober Thanksgiving." This title immediately took me back to not only my first sober Thanksgiving but also my last drunk Thanksgiving. Both holidays have a special place in my memory and bring back a flood of gratitude for our program that allows me to live a sober life.

My last Thanksgiving as a drunk was not a pleasant experience to put it mildly. The Wednesday before Thanksgiving Day was a scheduled day off for me, meaning that I was to have five full days with no constraints on my alcohol intake. In addition, when I was to return to work on Monday, it would be to start a major plant turnaround that would last two months with no break for Christmas or New Years Day. Needless to say, I saw Thanksgiving as my last opportunity to drink the way I wanted to for a long time, and I intended to make the most of it. I did just that. I did not breathe a sober breath for the entire five days. When it was time to go to work and start the long turnaround, I was hung over, sick, and racked by anxiety at a level I had never experienced. It was a solid three days before I felt decent again. At the time I didn't know it, but I was suffering from DT's. Over the next several months there were to be several more episodes of what I now know were cases of the DT's.

Following the completion of the turnaround project, my drinking continued to get worse. The project I had helped implement during the turnaround was fraught with many problems leading to a lot of stress that I attempted to alleviate with alcohol. A series of events I won't go into here led to my last drunk in August of the following year. A few weeks after that last drunk, I attended my first AA meeting and immediately knew I had found something I wanted more of.

Fast forward to Thanksgiving of that year. I was at my job on the Wednesday before the holiday. We received notice that non-essential personnel were released at 11:00 AM if we so wished. My company would frequently release us early before Christmas, but never in my 30-year career had this been done for the Thanksgiving holiday. Since we had company coming in later that day, I wouldn't be able to make the 6:00 PM meeting of my home group. The thought occurred to me that I could go to the noon meeting of the Brockman Road Group, to which I had never been. I sat down and almost immediately I felt a sense of peace and serenity pass over me. I thought back to one year earlier and recalled the misery and depression of that time. At that point, I felt a flood of gratitude. I was free of alcohol for the first time in a very long time and it felt amazing. The chairperson chose gratitude for the topic, and I got to share the experience I have written about here.

Since that time, quite a few Thanksgiving holidays have come and gone. Every single one of them has brought back the memory and contrast of that last drunken holiday and the first sober one. I never fail to reflect and remember the change that sobriety through the program and fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous has gifted me.

Happy Thanksgiving and happy gratitude month to each and every one of you. Each of you reading this has in some been a part of my trip along the Road of Happy Destiny, whether you realize it or not.

In love and service,

Rick M.
